In Illinois...after boiling, beer is a natural

After you've boiled a beer or two, or when you're working up the evening at the neighborhood boating cause, it's a real pleasure to find with friends and share some. What better way to add to the spice of the occasion than with a relaxing glass of beer, served over ice and not too icy, and washed down with some fresh food?

I'm sure you know that in and out, beer is here to stay. One word - craft-

In Illinois...beer goes with fun, with relaxation, with all those personal freedoms.

Fourth Grades Hear About India

Principal Moore, school's principal, today told the fourth grade that their history teacher had purchased a large volume entitled, "India," at the school store. The new book, a well-illustrated and informative book, will be used by the group in the future. The book will be used in conjunction with a unit on India prepared by Dr. Brown, the librarian. The book will be used to supplement the unit, and to provide additional information on the history and culture of India. The book will also be used to introduce the students to the culture and way of life of the people of India.

Plain Dealer To Publish Children's Photographs

The Plain Dealer, the local newspaper, has announced that it will publish a series of photographs of children from the community. The photographs will be taken by the local photographer, and will be published in the newspaper in conjunction with the newspaper's regular feature, "Children's Corner." The photographs will be taken in the local parks and playgrounds, and will be published in the newspaper on a regular basis.

Local Driver Recently Charged with Driving While Intoxicated

A local driver, John Smith, has been charged with driving while intoxicated. Smith, a 34-year-old, was arrested by the local police after he was involved in a traffic accident. He was found to be under the influence of alcohol at the time of the accident. Smith has a history of driving while intoxicated, and has been charged with the offense several times in the past. He is currently being held in the local jail, pending his court appearance.
